DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments, see Appeal Brief, filed November 26, 2008, with respect to reconsideration have been fully considered and are persuasive. The finality of previous action has been withdrawn. Prosecution on the merits of this application is reopened.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. The USPTO "Interim Guidelines for Examination of Patent Applications for Patent Subject Matter Eligibility" (Official Gazette notice of 22 November 2005), Section IV.C, reads as follows:

While abstract ideas, natural phenomena, and laws of nature are not eligible for patenting, methods and products employing abstract ideas, natural phenomena, and laws of nature to perform a real-world function may well be. In evaluating whether a claim meets the requirements of section 101, the claim must be considered as a whole to determine whether it is for a particular application of an abstract idea, natural phenomenon, or law of nature, rather than for the abstract idea, natural phenomenon, or law of nature itself.

For claims including such excluded subject matter to be eligible, the claim must be for a practical application of the abstract idea, law of nature, or natural phenomenon. Diehr, 450 U.S. at 187,209

USPQ at 8 ("application of a law of nature or mathematical formula to a known structure or process may well be deserving of patent protection."); Benson, 409 U.S. at 71,175 USPQ at 676 (rejecting formula claim because it "has no substantial practical application").

To satisfy section 101 requirements, the claim must be for a practical application of the Sec. 101 judicial exception, which can be identified in various ways:

The claimed invention "transforms" an article or physical object to a different state or thing.

The claimed invention otherwise produces a useful, concrete and tangible result, based on the factors discussed below.

4. Claims 8 – 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Regarding claims 8 - 15: the claimed limitation "a machine readable medium that provides instructions...perform operations” is not patentable since pages 6, paragraphs 11 in the specification states “computer-readable medium may include electrical, optical, acoustical or other form of propagated signals (e.g., carrier wave, infrared signals, digital signals, the interfaces that transmit and/or receive those signals, etc) and other”.

5. Application with a useful, concrete, and tangible result in the technological arts.

In order to for the claimed process to produce a "useful, concrete, and tangible" result, recitation of one or more of the following elements is suggested:

- 1 The manipulation of data that represents a physical object or activity transformed from outside the computer (MPEP 2106 IVB2(b)(i)).
- 2 A recitation of a physical transformations outside the computer, for example in the form of pre or post computer processing activity (MPEP 2106 IVg2(b)(i)).
- 3 A direct recitation of a practical application in the technological arts (MPEP 2106 IVg2(b)(ii)).

Applicant is also advised to provide a written explanation of how and why the claimed invention (either as currently recited or as amended) produces a useful, concrete and tangible result.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 1-7 and 16-27 are allowed.

Claims 1-7 and 16-27 are allowable over the prior art of record because a search does not detect the combined claimed elements as set forth in the claims 1-7 and 16-27.

As recited in independent claims 1, 16, and 22, none of the prior art of record teaches or fairly suggests that a mobile station performing transmitting data at a first transmit power level, determining a first value for a network traffic parameter at the first transmit power level, and determining a second power level different than the first power level, transmitting data at the second transmit power level, and determining a second value for the network traffic parameter at the second transmit power level, wherein the network traffic parameter is based on a volume of communications observed by the mobile station, and together with combination of other element as set forth in the claims 1-7 and 16-27. Therefore, claims 1-7 and 16-27 are allowable over the prior art of records.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
